

The Lives of Staph Game Rules

1. There can be a maximum of 5 players in a group per game.
2. Each group needs an action list and two dice to play.
3. Each player needs a paper clip, a pencil, and a player sheet.
4. Players will roll the dice and follow the action sheet instruction depending on the numbers they roll.
5. Players will keep track of their population growth by sliding the paper clip across their player sheet between levels.
6. Players will draw the adaptations they inherit onto their bacterium, this model represents their adaptations throughout the game.
7. If you get sent to Population Level 1 two turns in a row, you must cross out your current bacterial population; your round is over until the next game.
8. Players who have a population that survives to the end of a round win that round. The winner(s) of a game survives the most rounds.
